Co-Presidents Letter

July has arrived along with the humidity! Air conditioning is a good thing now, but remember when the heat didn't seem so hot, especially with a banana Popsicle in one hand and a jar of lighting bugs in the other. Enough of yesteryear let me fill you in on what has been going on in the League.

Our Annual meeting at Pamilco Jack's was well attended and the food was excellent. Judge Linda McGee was an informative speaker, warning us about big money in elections of Judges, the possible outcomes, and how she still supports public funding for elections. We said goodbye to Marianne Landrum, secretary for six years, who has moved to Delaware, and Joan Phifer finished her term as Programs Director. Each were given a parting gift. New (old) officers were sworn in by past-president Carole Burchett. Glenda Keel was installed as our new secretary. Yellow roses, a symbol of the Suffrage Movement were presented. The League of Women Voters Dare County thus closed another productive year.

At the State Convention, held in Charlotte, Dare County League of Women voters won the Program Award for the March 2, 2013 Celebration of Women's History Month, presented by Jo Nickolas, State President. The Convention also featured three speakers and five workshops. Audrey Esposito, State Board Member, Lori Williams, Mary Jane Slesinski, and I attended. We learned a lot and were inspired even more. We became part of the NC email network to advance the League's stated goals for voter advocacy and education.

Renewed and inspired we held the Board's retreat on June 7th. Someone asked me how we could top this years' programming and I acknowledged it would be difficult, but guess what! I think we have. Of course our main duty is to organize forums in October, for all the town's election in November. But we will also tackle education legislation and its possible impact on the Outer Banks. Friday December 5, 2013 at the Duck Woods County Club is our annual holiday luncheon and auction. We thought we could recruit Tony DiBernardo as our auctioneer again. We have scheduled a January Program on the "Face of the Dream Act," which will include immigration attorneys and one or two young people who are "Dreamers." By popular demand we are arranging a presentation at the Coastal Studies Institute for February. March will continue our celebration of Women's History Month by listening to life and times of Outer Banks women.

For an interesting Go See Tour, we hope to arrange a tram ride through Alligator River preserve, a presentation at the new Wildlife Refuge Center, and of course lunch at Fisherman's Wharf. We are excited about these programs and work has already begun in securing speaker, venues, etc., however, changes may have to be made. One thing we are sure of is our September event. We are going to have an old fashioned Bar-B-Que on the Thursday September 26, 2013, hoping we can encourage lots of members/spouses to attend. A League Trivia Game is being devised and there will be prizes! Please put this on your calendar. More details, time, cost, etc. will follow. The more members/spouses = more fun!!!

I have been sending you more emails and snail mail about what is going on in NC Legislature. I am receiving information from the State President, other NC League Round Tables, and Audrey Esposito, State Board Member. There is lots going on, education, re-districting, voter laws, and environmental concerns. I hope you are informed by these emails.

That's all for now, the Lightening Bugs are ready to come out, must mean it's my bedtime!

JANET JORDAN - a new member

Janet joins us from Canada where she was born and raised. After raising two children, she returned to school and received a RN diploma. While vacationing on the Outer Banks, she met a "local man". She later married him and immigrated to America in 1990. She continues to work in the health field and teaches the Nursing Assistant Program Level II at COA and is also working at the women' shelter. She and her husband (a captain on the Hatteras ferry) live in Wanchese. Janet misses her two children and two granddaughters but gets back to Canada often for visits. Janet serves on our Board as the Health Program chair.

Surveying the School Scene

By Marion W. Midgett, Education Chair

The Dare County Board of Education met on May 14, 2013 at Manteo Middle School and on June 11, 2013 at Cape Hatteras Elementary School. The following covers highlights of the meetings.

Recognitions

At both sessions, many individual staff members and whole schools were recognized.

In May, three teachers from Manteo Middle were recognized for achieving National Board Certification. Also, the school's Classified (support) Employee of the Year accepted a certificate along with winners from Manteo High, Manteo Elem, and the Central Office. Next, Steve Basnight, Principal of Dare County Alternative School, was recognized for successfully completing the NC DPI Principals Association's Distinguished Leadership in Practice Course and for being chosen to speak at the National Blended Learning Conference in Orlando, Florida.

In June, two teacher assistants from Cape Hatteras Elementary were recognized and given certificates for achieving "highly qualified" status as of June 2012. Previous reports here have explained the process. In addition, the school's Classified Employee of the year was introduced.

Also, in May and June, Teachers of the Year (TOY) for 2012--2013 were introduced from Manteo Middle, Dare County Alternative School, and Cape Hatteras Elementary. Teachers of the Year are chosen by their peers at each school.

Another recognition in May was for Manteo High School's full staff for their school being selected as one of the top 20 high schools in North Carolina by US News and World Report. Schools are judged using a college readiness index. This is a repeat of last year! In June, Cape Hatteras Elementary received Board praise for its designation as a North Carolina Green Ribbon School. Schools are selected for this honor based on their strategies and success in using positive behavior interventions to prevent behavior problems such as tardiness and suspensions.

Also in May and June, many Manteo Middle, First Flight Middle, Manteo High, Dare County Alternative School, and Cape Hatteras Elementary students were recognized for a variety of achievements.

Seven First Flight Middle students and their teacher, Cliff Jenkins, who participated in the North Carolina Solar Center's Competition for the Sustainable Transportation Education Program (STEP) showed the CAD designed small cars they demonstrated at the competition. Four 7th graders won the state Creativity Award.

Three Dare County Alternative School students were recognized for winning second place overall in the high school division of the 2013 North Carolina Stock Market Game Spring Session Contest. Their teacher, Kevin Cox, accepted on behalf of the students.

MHS principal, John Luciano, introduced three young men and math teacher, Frank Vrablic. Two are math competition winners: one for an individual 1st place at the Elizabeth City State Univ. Regional Math Competition; and, one for two Algebra I awards at the regional and state levels. The third, a junior, has been selected to attend the prestigious Governor's School in Winston Salem this summer.

Two Middle School students, a boy from Cape Hatteras and a girl from Manteo were recognized for poetry awards won at the 2013 National Career Development Conference.

Four Cape Hatteras Secondary DECA (a marketing careers organization) members were honored as event winners at the 2013 National Leadership Conference in Anaheim, California. Their teacher, Evan Ferguson, was recognized for the coveted State Marketing Teacher/DECA Advisor award she was presented at the 2013 NC State Leadership Conference. This is remarkable as she was in her second year of teaching.

Instructional Highlights

In May, eighth grade students from Manteo Middle shared how the use of computers and the Haiku Learning Management System has enhanced their science studies.
